

A LETTER FROM GOD

Dearest

As requested, you have been reassigned to a new job position. It is the one I have been telling you about for many years. It meets all the qualities that you asked for and in addition your pay scale has been elevated to meet your new understanding of your worth.

I have been holding this position open for you for quite some time since you are the only one who can do this particular job.

I have felt that you were ready a few years ago. However you felt that you had other things to do and your wish for yourself was what I wanted for you.

Today I rejoice that you have finally agreed to accept this new job position. As you are performing your tasks, please remember that the easier they are and the more fun that you are experiencing are sure signs that you are listening to my direction and doing a wonderful job.

Please call on me at any time for assistance, encouragement or if you wish to extend your job description. You may also contact me if you desire to increase your salary; it is always your option.

Your ever-loving employer and Father,

God
